Oun Paran.—Our readers will perceive at we have made a night addition to the tis of our paper this week. This we have done identify it more closely with our own town; to make of "Mnunee" having in common se, a general application to the whole valley of he river. We judged this to be somewhat important in a publication intended to answer a local, rather than a general purpose.

THE STREET COURT.-This court hold its in Wood county, on Wednesday and inst; present, Judges Lane and rinke. A large number of causes were set ed of, during the two days to which the ses-sion was limited. The causes tried, so far as ave learned are as follows :

Henry Mathews vs. Joseph Logan, for slan-er and malicious prosecution. This case grew at of a controversy between the parties, reout of a controversy between the parties, re-specting nine white sheep, one gray or black , one sheep-bell with a crack in it, and taken by the said Mathews ped by said Logan. This controversy in all forms of action, both civil and has come at last to its complexion .-

mry Bennett vs. Nathaniel Dustin-As mpait, on a note of hand. Defence—want of ion. It was proved that the note iven for the payment of the price of Jand sold by the plaintiff to the defendant by con-tract to convey in fee after payment of the note and that the said land had been mortgaged previous to the transaction between the parties, to the Ohio Trust Co. and to another person.

By the Court—A mortgage is not a convey-ance absolute, and may be annulled by act of the parties at any time previous to the fore-closure. There is no proof of foreclosure.— From aught that appears the plaintiff has it in his power to convey the land, or in other words. there is no proof of failure of consideration .-

The plantiff is a very interesting woman, and seemed much moved at being occugat before the court on an occasion like thus. However, we hope she will console herself for the deser-tion of her liege lord, and find a lineband who shall be better than the renegade reque who has left her with all the troubles and none of the advantages of widowhood.

SENATOR BATES' ORGAN,-When, in the fice, it becomes necessary that he should have an organ, to trumpet his doctrines, sing his praises, clarion his graces, and hymn his various shining qualities to an admiring world.—
It is with feelings of patification that we are able to announce that our senator (that was,) Mr. Bates, has secured the services of such an organ, in the person of the "Political Tickler," by some persons unknown, during which transparencies were exhibited typical of the death a paper printed in Findley, Hancock county, under the editorial management of one Seneca N. Gordon, and one Edson Goit, the latter an and the former, formerly a attorney at law er-tinguished curator for his singularly happy choice, and as according to the theory of Dr. rowth, we have no doubt, but, that

The laborer is worthy of his hire, and governments should be the last either to refuse or even to be slow in the payment. Again we shall have cash in circu ation, and money will be more plenty for a short time. Tradesmen will be set upon their legs, and the lagging wheels of commerce will again move forward.

THE CHESAPEAKE,-This splendid steame will be out and ready for business in a few days, and we bespeak for her the favorable notice of our brethren of the craft, assuring them that she will not only prove worthy of examination but of praise.

THE TOLEDO BLADE. -- We have received the last number of this paper, much enlarged and improved. It is a very respectable sized sheet, and quite handsomely worked. Indeed we could hardly suggest an alteration except in the name. Mr. Irving has retired from the editorial management of the Blade and his place is filled by somebody else.

THE PROPLES BANNER .- This is the title of a spirited little Whig paper, lately started at Elyria, Lorain County, and Edited by A. Burrell. We embrace the editor's offer to exchange with pleasure, and wish him success in his undertaking.

It forms the caption of an article copied from the Washington Globe, containing the description of a parade holden in Washington by some persons unknown, during which trans and burial of the Sub-Treasury Bill. This pageant, which, it seems was carried on without noise, disturbance or breach of the peace, awakens all the ire of the Globe and a flaming article is published in its columns which is co pied in the Statesman, introduced by the editorial remarks below. It is difficult to speak of such productions in a strain belitting their demerits. They will justify the use of the strangest language that can be selected. We punish with the severest penalties the criminal who fires our dwelling, and should we not look down with eyes of condemnation upon him who would strive to kindle a flame in the public mind, upon matters which are unworthy of a serious notice. THE COUNTY SPAT-MR. BATES &C. Below is a communication from a "Whig," in which we are taken to task for certain es sions contained in our last paper. The writer, certainly cannot be censured for mineing mat-ters with us, but we have no notion of getting with life preservers. It is a pleasure to observe up a sensation this hot weather, especially as the proprietors of this spleadid craft listening the flagellation is not corporal. If the statements of last week are incorrect, this will correct them.

For the Maumeee Express.

Ma. Enron .- Your leading article of last week scemed to me calculated to benefit the didates in the next fall election, however con-trary to your intention that such should be its effect. If the charge against the whigh as a party, is true, I have no wish to palliate it, tho'it seems to me that a whig paper is not the proper vehicle—and a short time before the election, not the proper time for its promulgation. The other party has papers reckless and bitter enough that will not fail to find errors enough in whig legislation or as occasion offers to manufacture them for the good of the party. The information of the whig party having as a party been unfavorable to a review it was a reply.

The new Harbor bill, that is the bill making of the location of the county sent of Lucas. I fear came from the enemies camp-and I have reason to think is entirely untrue. By referring to the journals of the last Legislature, it will. I think, be found that all the motions in favor of a review came from Whigs, and that too of high standing in the party.

If, as I do not believe, it was made a party question, the fault was in the indiscreet zeal of a Van Burenite, (not Mr. Bates) who in la-was held by the whigs of his acquaintance.

Mr. Bates you say prepared himself to report on the matter. Indeed?—after being some three or four months a member of the senate-about a week before the adjournment he was prepared to move in the matter-and then the wicked whigs to avoid the tremendous effect which his exposed, and his overwhelming eloquence in its support was likely to produce on the whig majority-they turned im out-doubtless fearing to trust themselves in the hands of one so able and influential.

But to be serious. Mr. Bates was continued in his seat till near the end of the session, be cause from the great extent of the district, it

AFFECTING SCENE .- The Seamboat General Brady visited our port a few days since to pay a last visit to her old friend in arms, the Gen Jackson. These two boats were raised from infancy together, and for many years, like the brother stage drivers we once read of, were in the daily habit of exchanging their friendly salutes as they passed one another on the route. The Jackson like all other bodies possessing the power of locomotion, is at present, on the verge of "that land from whose bourne no traveller returns," and the Brady hearing of her critical situation, hastened to her bad side to sooth her pillow, while she passed from this vain and transitory world of phizzing, stearning and scalding, to that land of promise, where the bursting of boilers is not known. The scene was an affecting one and as she left the scene was an affecting one and as she left the side of her friend. she shed a plentiful supply

Mr. Pope would not put the committee to the trouble of settling whether or not he was in

Mr. Petrikin and Mr. Sherrod Williams claimed the floor. After some effort the for-mer proceeded, but was not heard by the re-porter. He had not proceeded but a little way

Mr. Harrison called him to order. The chair ordered him to reduce his point of

The chair ordered him to reduce his point of order to writing.

He did so: and called the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Petrikin,) to order for saying, "the price of the Kentucky delegation is $20,000." The chair decided out of order, and the committee, by a large vote, refused Mr. Petrikin leave to go on.

Mr. Duncan rose, but having been refused permission to proceed, objection was made to his going on. He said he held a book in his hand funderstood to be Mr. Bond's speech out of which he wished to make a speech. But if the committee would permit him to write it out, and call it his speech in Committee of the whole, he would desist. Loud cries of agraed! from all quarters of the house ensued, and Mr. Duncan sat down.

Duncan sat down.

Mr. Band hoped that his colleague would state in such written speech that it was not delivered in presence of the member to whom

We are not certain but we shall conclude to publish these letters in toto— hands boring to obtain the votes of his party, as a party—made the cause of the removal of our county seat, partake of the odium in which he was held by the whigs of his acquaintance. the writer assures us, canal boats may pelled without even ruffling the surface of the water! If this discovery proves what is claimed for it, it will introduce a new era in canal navigation.—Defiance Banner.

Oh! I had almost forgot one remarkable disovery in steam. A new mode of applying team has been invented, which will do away with horse power entirely on canals. On the day of the launch last week, a small boat of forty tons was passing and repassing on the river, without paddles or sails. She had a high pressure engine on board-and there she went through the water, puff, puff, puff, without indicating any other symptom of motive power, or even a single ripple disturbing her

It seems that she has under her bottom, was not probable that another could be elected and arrive in Columbus before the termination of the session. And the whigs anxious for the district, were willing and desirous that it should have all the benefits which could arise to them from the services of Mr. Bates, weak as on all hands he was allowed to be

A. WHIG.

It seems that she has under her bottom, a single paddle in the shape of a screw, with one turn only. To this screw is given a rotary motion, by the steam engine and its motion propels her through the water, without creating a single ripple on its surface, around the boat.—An experiment was made last week on the Surry canal, and it succeeded beyond all expectation. I saw the little boat myself, moving like a living creature, over the dirty bosom of the Thames. There is now no doubt of the entire success of the plan, and in less than a couple of the course.

From the United States Gavette

We heard yesterday, that when the nawe of the destruction of the Pulaski reached New York, and it was believed that all on board had perished, the father of one of the ladies who it was known had taken passage on board that boat, praceeded immediately to Baltimore, where its arrived without hearing further from the wreck. On entering the public house, he inquired of the landlord whether he had received any further intelligence from the Pulaski.

"Were none saved."
"None it is believed, but the sixteen first "Do you know their names?"

"I do not remember them all, but the first was Mrs. . . She and the others are safe and well."

The inquirer fainted-it was his daughter.

The course which the Philadelphia Banks intend to pursue in relation to a resumption of specie payments, appears to be still a matter of specie payments, appears to be still a matter of much uncertainty—at least we have not been able to obtain any positive information on the subject. The best authenticated seems to be that another meeting of the directors of those institutions, for further deliberation, will be held in a few days.

We at any rate have resumed here, and we would now ask those who so strenuously urged the measure, what benefits have flown from it!

A few days since the Journal of Commerce had an article, which it no doubt thought a very witty one—and which attracted our attention from the encomiums which accompanied its insertion in the Washington Glove-on the or the washington Gibbe—on the Saubject of the resolution passed by the New Orleans banks, that they would resume specie payments on the first of January next, provided the United States Bank would furnish a medithe United States Bank would furnish a medium of exchange. This condition is certainly worded in a singular manner, and no doubt intentionally so, for, harrassed and persecuted as the banks are by government, and too often by public opinion, they dare hardly speak out plainly. They intended to say no doubt, that they would resume provided they could purchase with their paper United States Bank paper at par, or at a premium that would not amount to more than transporting specie from New Orleans to the Atlantic. And is the fact that they are not able to do this now, a fit subthat they are not able to do this now, a fit sub-ject for jest? Is it a matter for merriment, that the commerce of New Orleans is not able to pay debts contracted by it to the banks in specie? For to this it comes at last. It is the inability of the debtorate the banks to disyears, I expect to see the whole length of the Eric canal, navigated by steam power, without injuring at all its banks. One such steamboat as I saw could take a train of thirty canal boats at a speed of six miles an hour.

Taking all these things into consideration it is no wonder that the people of rank are begining to get enthusiastic on the subject of steam navigation. The world is in the beginning of a new social revolution. The power of steam is about discovering America to Europe a second time.

No material change in the price of United States Bank Stock has taken place. Delawnic and Hudson Canal Co. declined yesterday a per cent.; Morris Canal 2, Mohawk Railroad Co. 1, Stomington Railroad Co. 2, and Patterson Railroad Co. 8 per cent. to the selection of a suitable candidate for Congress.

The Defiance Banner, printed in Williams county, says, that Mr. Goode is the only main spoken of by the Whigs in that part of the district—and considers a convention unnecessary.

From the other counties we have no intelligence excepting that obtained verbelly from their delegates to the Columbus convention of the first of May. All of whom concurred in the belief that the minds of the Whigs they represented were upon the subject—that a convention was not desired because there were no adverse opinions to be reconciled, as to who should be the candidate of the party—Mr. Goode being the man whom the Whigs were all anxious to take up.

It may therefore now be set down as a certainty, that no Whig Congressional convention will be held in the third district to select a candidate for the coming fall election. And we
